1. PUTTING THE "MOVE" IN MOVING.

All work and no play may make Jill a dull girl - but sometimes work is play, as Helene Chadwick proves when she happens around the studios while stages are being moved.

"What does a man know about moving? - It takes a woman." She decides to superintend the job.

"Better hurry - I've got to make a new picture here pretty soon."

Looks as if she's playing "London Bridge."

"Wait - let me show you."

All around the Mulberry Bush.

Just when everything's nearly ready she discovers --

"Don't you know you can't smoke around studios?"

2. HE SPEAKS HIS MIND

Independence has always been the secret of Jackie Coogan's success. In fact, we found him one day having an argument with some one most kids are scared of ---

"I think you're handling this traffic all wrong."

"Like to have you teach me how, Mr. Coogan."

So he did.

Jackie always wanted to be a cop!

He thinks he'd better stick to movies after all.

3. FEEDING AN ARMY OF PLAYERS

Taking a large company of players 100 miles from nowhere presents many difficulties, and, like an army, they must carry with them their own cooks and eating facilities.

Hold your hearts, girls -- here's Rodolph Valentino.

"Eat, drink, and be merry - for tomorrow we work" says Agnes Ayres.

"Gracious, Rudy, you'll get fat and won't be nearly so handsome!"

When the day's work is over - "Rudy" and Walter Long furnished the entertainment.

4. THIS MAY LOOK LIKE A COMET

Photographn(Hope Hampton)

Filming scenes for a new picture with E.K. Lincoln.

Director Clarence Brown and his assistants.

Imagine having to teach grown-ups how to kiss?

"Hey - the censors will never pass that!"

Would you call this "lip-reading?"

5. NO SWELLED HEAD HERE.

A sudden rise to fame and stardom would turn many a sensible player's head - but this one is still modest, loyal, and unspoiled.
It's Strongheart - well named - strong and fearless of heart - more than dog in intelligence.
He and his owner are great pals.
"Shake!"
Keeping his figure.
Here's the lady of the house - Mrs. Strongheart.
--- And here are all the little Stronghearts.

6. From Africa to Alaska & from China to England, the whole world has joined in laughter at two of America's foremost comedians.
To Doug Fairbanks, and Charlie Chaplin - Bless 'em!
An admirer from Australia sent Mary Pickford a present so she came to show it to Doug and Charlies.
They just couldn't wait.
